

Why like that what's not perfect

I got this question the other day voting on AI images. "Why do you vote on images that look like bad photo's?" The obvious answer is of course, -it is extremely hard to AI produce images that really look like photos and not somekind of anime, facetuned animation. Perfect, no flaws and doll-like productions ain't photo's, that's fantasy, and AI is really good in fantasy.

Of course I love images that depict people's inner imagination and wishes, but honestly, producing a AI-image, that look's like a bad taken photo, that's pure art! Sometimes unintentionally we scribble down the masterpiece, sometimes the year-long painting never becomes good enough.

I simply believe that good art isn't only, the most perfect of what can be, but it is the flaws and intention that makes it unique!
